DC Needs Integrated Information to Support All Residents on the Path to Economic Mobility

Young people need cohesive support across the different parts of their lives to help them achieve their goals. In DC, the many agencies and organizations that serve youth and families make it difficult to see the full picture of what young people need, identify service gaps, or address historic disparities. The DC Education Through Employment Data System enables families and partners to access critical information to put all DC residents on a path to economic mobility.

By bridging information gaps, the DC Education Through Employment Data System will equip residents with information to strengthen support systems, address racial disparities, and improve outcomes for young people and families.

FAMILIES AND COMMUNITIES

Families and communities are equipped with information to make decisions about their journey through college and career, and to identify the best fit opportunities to achieve their personal and professional goals.

EMPLOYERS

Employers can leverage information on education and training programs to develop a local talent pipeline.

CITY LEADERS

City leaders can strengthen service delivery and make informed investment in programs with strong outcomes.

COMMUNITY PARTNERS

Community partners can request highquality, de-identified data that captures information across multiple sectors to identify effective supports for youth and share best practices with leaders and practitioners.
