Have you heard about DC's Public Education Master Facilities Plan *Canvasser will share one-pager on MFP regardless of answer**

- Yes No

To make sure the MFP best describes the school facilities that we have now as well as our school facility needs in the future, the Office of the Deputy Mayor of Education (DME) is developing the DC Public Education Master Facilities Plan 2018 (MFP). The goals of the MFP are to:

- Advance equity and excellence across public education by providing an understanding of the current landscape of our current public school facilities – DCPS and public charters.
- Provide current facility conditions and future facility needs.
- Identify schools that are currently underutilized or overcrowded and provide recommendations on how to address these challenges.
- Identify potential gaps between future facility needs and anticipated public school enrollment growth.

Based on what you learned about the MFP, which three (3) of the following topics are most important to you?
